SECULAR HUMANISM

Secular humanism maintains that there is a "natural" or scientific explanation for every event and realm of existence, and that the "supernatural does not exist." Everything we observe has come from the unplanned, unguided, chance interaction of force and matter over long periods of time. Secular humanists consider all religion to be a hoax, divorced from the reality of the material world. They exclude God, the spiritual realm, and the existence of absolute moral truth.

Secular humanism is a denial of God and man's accountability and responsibility to anything higher than himself. According to the Humanist Manifesto II (arguably the most concise, and definitive statement of the philosophy), secular humanists "begin with humans not God, nature not deity." They claim; "... we can discover no divine purpose or providence for the human species."

However, the Manifesto pervasively assumes that its readers hold to common, core moral values – in spite of the emphatic denial of moral absolutes. Their lofty words and phrases are loaded with moral significance, and sound very appealing if their inconsistency is ignored. Listen to some of them:

"Humanism is an ethical process" that can "provide the purpose and inspiration that so many seek; [giving] personal meaning and significance to human life." ... "We strive for the good life, here and now." ... "The preciousness and dignity of the individual person is a central humanist value" ... "People are more important than decalogues, rules, proscriptions, or regulations."

No explanation is offered as to how or why the ethics of secular humanism gives "meaning and significance to human life." And then who or what defines the "good life?" And in a world that is supposedly the end-product of random, meaningless events, what gives meaningful value to anything we "strive for"? What gives an individual "preciousness and dignity?" In the hit on Christianity, just why are people are "more important than decalogues, rules, proscriptions, or regulations?"

The popular art of an age is always a reflection of the values of that age. So much of it today reflects a lack of purpose and meaning, and the hopelessness of life. Modern paintings are often meaningless and random in form — much modern music is discordant and aimless — many plays and literature are without plot or purpose, with no heroes or villains. The artists, composers and writers of this material view life as meaningless, bleak, discordant, and aimless — without purpose or hope. Without absolutes, there are no heros or villains. Their work is popular because it represents the prevailing view of life of so much of society. When God has been removed, what is left?

The emptiness of modern man has been summarized with incredible pathos and eloquence by Bertrand Russell, considered by many to be England's greatest 20th century secular humanist:

"That man is the product of causes which had no pre-vision of the end they were achieving; that his origin, his growth, his hopes and fears, his loves and his beliefs, are all but the outcome of accidental collocations of atoms; that no fire, no heroism, no intensity of thought and feeling can preserve an individual life beyond the grave; that all the labor of the ages, all the noonday brightness of human genius, are destined to extinction in the vast death of the solar system, and that the whole temple of Man's achievement must inevitably be buried beneath the debris of a universe in ruins — all these things, if not quite beyond dispute, are yet so nearly certain, that no philosopher which rejects them can hope to stand.

Only within the scaffolding of these truths, only on the firm foundation of unyielding despair, can the soul's habitation henceforth be safely built."

The only foundation that this great humanistic philosopher can offer for "the soul's habitation" is "unyielding despair"!!!

MARXISM

Marxism is the political, economic, and social philosophy of Karl Marx and his assistant Frederick Engels. Marx and Engels wrote the Communist Manifesto in 1848 which laid the foundation for today's communist political parties. The manifesto was created to initiate the downfall of capitalism, Christianity, and Western culture through the violent revolutionary overthrow of legitimate governments in order to establish Marxist-based communist governments. There is no ideological difference between Marxism and communism. Communist parties simply do the "dirty work" of establishing Marxism in a society, and the vanquished society is then said to be a "communist" state.

Marx maintained that history is shaped by economic factors related to the conflict between the social class that controls the modes of production in society (the bourgeoisie) and the working class (the proletariat). Society is constantly changing as a result of this conflict, and history is basically the story of this class struggle. Marx called the process dialectical materialism, by which an existing social order (the thesis) comes into conflict with a newer emerging order (the antitheses), eventually forming a new social order (the synthesis).

Marx used the term "scientific socialism" to describe his social theory. By this he meant the application of the scientific method to the understanding of history and society to form a materialistic, social theory. Marx's analysis of history is considered by Marxists to be the most penetrating and brilliant analysis ever made. In it, he outlined a detailed explanation as to how the world's injustices came into being.

The Introduction of Private Property: Marx believed that primitive people had common ownership of everything except their most personal belongings. The domestication of land and flocks resulted in production excess and people began exchanging their surplus for things they lacked. Excess private property was introduced. The owners of land and flocks reaped the major benefits. They could dictate wages and conditions to maximize their own profit – at the expense of the workers. This gave birth to class antagonism, greed, and all other evils of society.

The Origin of the State: Marx believed that when the working class had been exploited to the point of revolt, the ruling class created a power structure to maintain "law and order" and protect their property and privileges, and further exploit the workers, which became the state.

The Origin of Religion: Marx believed that another exploiting consequence of private property was the "invention" of organized religion. Man's natural religious instincts were used to control and further exploit the workers by teaching them humility, patience, and long-suffering, and the glories of "heaven." This reduced their outcry against their exploitation and gave them hope for a better life in the "hereafter." Religion taught them to "judge not" and kept them passive. The commandments "Thou Shalt Not Steal" and "Thou Shalt Not Covet" were invented to impose respect for bourgeoisie property by the workers, who could not help but covet the wealth of their masters.

Thus, Marx and Engels believed they had identified the source of all social conflict and strife. Their conclusion was clear – to eliminate the "evils" of society, ownership of private property had to be eliminated. Furthermore, the institutions of society that support and propagate private property must also be eliminated. It was then concluded that:

- Since capitalism is the economic system based on the ownership and exchange of private property, it had to be eliminated.
- Since Christianity legitimatizes private property, upholds the importance of the individual over the state; and since so many Christians believe in God with evangelical zeal and oppose Marxism, Christianity and the idea of absolute moral truth – and indeed all Christian values – must be eliminated.
- Since the traditional family is considered to be the fundamental unit of society, nurturing Christian morality and values, such as patriotism and property rights, the family unit must be redefined and the traditional family eliminated.

This is absolutely essential to establish a final, utopian, trouble-free society, referred to as "Full Communism." While communism presently requires the totalitarian control of society to elimination all the above, when this is accomplished, the state will no longer be needed. Then, under Full Communism;

- Civil government, law enforcement and law courts will not be needed.
 There will be no enforced labor. People will simply do what they are
- most naturally suited to. Everyone will be socially minded and work hard for the benefit of society as a whole.
- There will be no wages and, and in fact, no money. With the elimination of private property, personal incentive and the profit motive will be entirely absent.
- There will be no buying or selling, and no "shops."
- The disbursement of goods and services will be based entirely on need. Commodities will be stockpiled at various points by the happy workers and continually replenished, as the workers simply help themselves according to their needs.

Marxism is therefore much more than a social and economic philosophy or system of government. It is a specific revolutionary cause with the lofty and inspiring objective of ultimately establishing a classless society in which all social injustice, strife, suffering and want are eliminated. As such, it is very appealing to a wide range of people. Its explanations and arguments can sound intellectually satisfying, compelling and "worthy," providing tremendous appeal to those in search of a cause they can live for and dedicate their lives — especially to the atheistic and agnostic mind as well as those who have rejected Christianity and institutionalized religion. Marxism can also appeal to those who are oppressed and poverty-stricken and see it as their only hope of relief from oppression.

By its very nature, Marxism demands a denial of self-interest in order to establish a "better" world. It inspires a noble future to work toward which gives Marxists a powerful, self-sacrificing "evangelical" zeal for their cause. This fervency is well illustrated by the following excerpts from a letter written during the Cold War era by an American college student who was converted to communism in Mexico. Its purpose was to explain to his fiancee why he must break off their engagement.

"We communists have a philosophy of life which no amount of money could buy. We have a cause to fight for, a definite purpose in life. We subordinate our petty, personal selves into a great movement of humanity, and if our personal lives seem hard, or our egos appear to suffer through subordination to the party, then we are adequately compensated by the thought that each of us in his small way is contributing to something new and true and better for mankind.

Cultural Marxism

Karl Marx had confidently predicted that when war came, the workers of the world would rise and unite to rebel against their oppressive rulers rather than fight their fellow workers of other nations. World War I proved him wrong, as workers of each warring nation rallied around their leaders and patriotically killed each other. Toward the end of this bloody conflict, Marxism was established in Russia, not by an uprising of the working class, but by a dedicated core of professional criminals who violently overthrew the government and seized people's farms and property, and murdered them by the millions. They came to loathe and detest their communist oppressors.

Some 20th century Marxists, including Antonio Gramsci (Italian) and Georg Lukacs (Hungarian), later saw that the use of force and violence was not winning the working class to Marxism. Western capitalism was improving the worker's lot, not impoverishing it, and they were obviously not about to rise up and overthrow their capitalist "oppressors." They concluded that their Christian heritage was blinding them to their real class interests and struggles. They believed that until Christianity and Western culture were uprooted from the soul of the West, Marxism would never take root. This could only be achieved through the nonviolent but revolutionary destruction of Western culture and its replacement from within.

This has been called Cultural Marxism, requiring what Gramsci called the "long march through the institutions," by which he meant the systematic infiltration, subversion, and take-over of all the cultural institutions of society – the schools, universities, churches, entertainment, the media etc., and government itself. Indoctrinated in this manner, they believed people would come to think like Marxists, without calling it as such, and eventually, they would embrace the tenets of Marxism. The process began with the hippie movement and the counter-cultural revolution of the 1960s and 1970s. Author Charles Reich described the process perfectly in his 1970 book "The Greening of America" –

There is a revolution coming. It will not be like the revolutions of the past. It will originate with the individual and with culture, and it would change the political structure only as its final act. It will not require violence to succeed, and it cannot be successfully resisted with violence. It is now spreading with amazing rapidity, and already our laws, institutions, and social structure are changing in consequence... This is the revolution of the new generation.

Cultural Marxists have created two specific behavior and thought processes to marginalize and destroy Western thought and culture. They are "Political Correctness" and "Postmodernism." Both are Marxist to the core, and have been devastatingly effective in confusing rational thought and conventional values. Political Correctness defines acceptable speech patterns that do not offend selective groups in matters of race, class, gender and sexual orientation. (Christians and political conservatives are specifically excluded.) Postmodernism has been called a "mood" – a way of analyzing ideas from the starting point that nothing is really true. It works hand-in-glove with Political Correctness. Postmodernism is generally considered to be an emerging worldview, however, it does not have what it takes to function in this capacity. It lacks any kind of consistent approach to the various disciplines needed to run a society, which cannot operate on the basis of vague, reality-denying "moods."

This revolution has had a cataclysmic effect on every facet of modern-day American life. The revolution was Marxist to the core, brilliantly planned and initiated by Marxist strategists, and executed by the manipulation of a mindless herd of malcontent, skillfully inflamed college students. Right here, in the United States – just as if we had been some third rate banana republic!

To old orthodox Marxists (communists), power was seized by violent overthrow of the existing regime. To the new Cultural Marxists, the path to power is nonviolent, requiring decades of patient labor. Anyone familiar with the current state of our society and culture will realize this process has been phenomenally successful!

NEW AGE (COSMIC HUMANISM)

The New Age movement has its roots in Hinduism and the occult. The term "New Age" refers to the coming Astrological Age of Aquarius.

Organizationally, the New Age movement is a large and looselyknit structure of organizations and individuals, bound together by common values based on Eastern mysticism, monism, and the vision of a new age of peace and mass enlightenment.

The New Age movement is a "spiritual smorgasbord" in which religious consumers can choose from a wide variety of groups, teachers, and practices, according to their spiritual desire and taste. All religions are seen as being "paths" to the same basic end. You can therefore pick and choose to take what you like and leaving what you don't, creating your own personalized version of "reality."

Man is seen as fundamentally "good" and perfectible through enlightenment and self-effort. His problem is ignorance, not sin.

God is an impersonal force, beyond the distinction of society, referred to as "Full Communism." While communism presently requires the totalitarian control of society to elimination all the above, — the belief that everything is god, because everything is "divine."

Human life does not consist of a one-time journey that ends in extinction, heaven or hell. Instead, the human soul goes through cycles of reincarnation, in which it enters into different bodies and circumstances of life each time through. The purpose is to finally arrive at a state of altered consciousness in which one merges into the "Universal Self" and becomes part of the "Universal Mind."

The popularity of the New Age movement is a consequence of Western man's disillusionment with secular humanism and materialism, which deny the obvious spiritual dimension of life. Man is incurably religious and needs a transcendent over-view of life. Christianity is seen as being too exclusive, costly and restrictive. The New Age philosophy acknowledges some form of spiritual reality while allowing man to live as he pleases. A very popular combination!

ISLAM

Islam is a monotheistic faith, the world's second-largest religion. Its followers (Muslims) believe that God (or, in Arabic, Allah) revealed his will to the prophet Muhammad (A.D. 570–632) and before that to Adam, Abraham, Moses, and Jesus.

Judaism and Christianity are seen as distortions of the teachings of the earlier prophets. Revelations given to Muhammad (and recorded as the Koran) are considered to be the final and ultimate authority, correcting Jewish and Christian traditions.

Islam's history is one of bloodshed. 280 million people have died under the conquests of Islam. Muslims have killed Jews, Christians, Copts, Hindus(80 million!), Armineans, and Assyrians.

There are now over 1.2 billion Muslims in the world and between 15% and 20% are said to be radical (180 – 240 million). Radical terrorists take a literal view of the violence described in the Koran and live with a 7th century view of how to expand their faith.

In 1982 the Muslim Brotherhood (started in Egypt) published a revealing 100-year plan for radical Islam to infiltrate and dominate the West and establish Islamic government on earth. This document became known as The Project which outlined how to infiltrate political parties in the West, how to be elected, how to obtain jobs in government, School Boards, City Councils, etc. It described how to build social networks within the inner cities, and how to recruit through mosques and madrassas (Islamic schools). This plan has already been implemented in Europe and has been so successful that Europe is now referred to as Eurabia. It took 30 years to advance in Europe, and it is beginning to move fast in America.

The method used by Muslims to peacefully take over a nation is to move families into an area, produce as many children, and when the area is sufficiently populated, start creating problems and uprisings, demanding the establishment of Sharia law (Islamic law).

Brigitte Gabriel in her book They must Be Stopped states-

"While the Islamic Party of Liberation hopes to usher in the caliphate peacefully through cultural jihad accomplished by manipulating Western freedoms (freedom of religion, of the press and of speech), and capitalizing on the tolerance, multiculturalism and openmindedness of the West, it holds to the position that it is every Muslim's duty to Allah to bring about Islamic rule by any means."

The Threat of Islam in America Today

America is facing threats to its freedom, peace and well being, and not just from radical terrorists. There are many "peaceful" non-violent Muslims in America today, but with rare exception, they do not speak out against terrorism. The fact is, all serious Muslims want to see the expansion of Islam and the establishment of a world-wide Islamic Caliphate.

Islam is now the fastest growing religion in America, with African Americans comprising 60% - 90% of all converts. There are more than 2.5 million Muslims in the New York metropolitan area alone. There are now mosques all over the United States. Undercover groups have retrieved hundreds of books and pamphlets from these mosques instructing Muslims how to live in infidel lands and deal with non-Muslims. The material comes from Saudi Arabia. Muslims are told to hate infidels for Allah's sake, to oppose them in every way and maintain a wall of resentment against them. Muslims are taught that brotherhood, democracy and equality cause all of the world's problems and that every religion except Islam is false. These "peaceful" Muslims are taught it is their religious duty to work to impose a—

"...functionally Islamic government upon every nation in the world. This religious duty is binding in principle, in law, in community and in self-defense. In order to fulfill the sacred obligation of jihad, they must, invade the Western heartland and struggle to overcome it until all the world shouts by the name of the prophet Muhammad, and the teachings of Islam spread throughout the world. Only then will Muslims achieve their fundamental goal and all religion will be exclusive for Allah."

This is what Muslims are learning in American mosques and madrassas (Islamic schools), where students are taught that Christians and Jews are apes and pigs because they are cursed by Allah. This same kind of hate education is used to incite hatred for the Jews by the Palestinians and surrounding Muslim groups, resulting in a multitude of suicide attacks, mostly against innocent civilians. America (the "great Satan") is being prepared for the same future treatment.

Middle East nations have amassed a fortune from oil sales to the West which is funding the expansion of Islam throughout the world. America itself has made the Middle East fabulously wealthy because of our past refusal to drill for oil within our own country. (There is plenty there!) Saudi Arabia has benefitted enormously from America's petrodollars, and they have sent multi-million dollars back to American universities to set up Middle East Departments, Political Science Departments, and to appoint Arab professors who are anti-Israel and anti-American. They teach that Israel and America are the source of the world's evil, and that Palestinians and Arabs are the underdogs. For the last 16 or more years, these students have been graduating to become the journalists and media people in America. Islam now refers to America as "occupied territory."

"Peaceful" Islam has come to America to permanently change us. Omar Ahmad, founder of the Council on American-Islamic Relations (CAIR) has said—

"Islam is not in America to be equal to any other faith, but to become dominant. The Koran should be the highest authority in America."

In America today, there is a great infrastructure of terrorist cells, consisting of three main groups: Al Quaida, Islamic Jihad and Hamas. Hamas has the largest with cells in 40 American states. There are now Islamic compounds all over the United States practicing Sharia Law. The FBI will not even enter many of them. Any enforcement of U.S. law in them is usually blocked by the ACLU in defending Islam. Also, there are 40 or more jihad camps in America today, training jihadists in terror tactics.

The intent of Radical Islam (both violent and non-violent) is to destroy Western civilization. Unless we are willing and ready to stand against them, they will eventually take over America.

How will America response? The statement "This can't happen in America?" is irrelevant— it has already started to happen.
